1. How to Reach People Operations

This section sets out the BluePeak rule for how to reach people operations. It should be applied with the document metadata, the related sections in this policy, and any stated cross-reference so that a number or phrase is not taken out of context.

Employees should use the applicable BluePeak form for a standard HR or Finance request so that the request can be routed, approved, and tracked. An unresolved request may be escalated under section 10.

For how to reach people operations, the policy separates the underlying entitlement or standard from the procedure used to administer it. Employees should first identify the rule that applies, then follow the stated request, approval, record, or escalation path. A similar word or number in another BluePeak document may describe a different program and should not be substituted for this section.

This how to reach people operations provision is intended to be understandable without relying on a verbal shortcut. When a question involves more than one policy topic, the answer should cite each applicable section and explain how the provisions work together instead of selecting a rule merely because its wording appears to be the closest match.

2. Applying for Paid Time Off

This section describes the required administrative path for applying for paid time off. A request is evaluated under the stated eligibility, notice, documentation, and approval rules; submitting information does not by itself change a limit or create approval.

Form: Form HR-101 Time Off Request
Form URL: <https://forms.bluepeak.example/hr-101>
Approver: direct manager
Expected turnaround: 5 business days

1. Check the available PTO balance and the notice period that applies to the requested dates.
2. Open Form HR-101 Time Off Request at the listed form URL.
3. Enter the first and last day of the requested time off and confirm whether the request covers three or more consecutive workdays.
4. Submit the completed form to the direct manager through the form workflow.
5. Review the form status and respond if the manager asks for scheduling clarification.
6. Wait for approval before booking nonrefundable travel.

Managers and process owners should apply the applying for paid time off language consistently and preserve the record that supports the decision. Communications should identify the relevant document and section so that the employee can distinguish the written policy from an informal explanation, a draft, or a rule that applies only at another site.

Administration of applying for paid time off should remain traceable from the employee question to the controlling policy text. The named owner may explain the provision and coordinate the relevant teams, but the explanation should preserve every stated threshold, eligibility condition, exception, and effective date contained in this document.

3. Reporting a Sick Absence

This section sets out the BluePeak rule for reporting a sick absence. It should be applied with the document metadata, the related sections in this policy, and any stated cross-reference so that a number or phrase is not taken out of context.

Form: Form HR-102 Absence Report
Form URL: <https://forms.bluepeak.example/hr-102>
Approver: direct manager
Expected turnaround: same day

1. Notify the direct manager before the scheduled shift where possible.
2. Open Form HR-102 Absence Report at the listed form URL.
3. Record the absence date and the information requested by the form without placing medical details in a manager message.
4. Submit the form for direct-manager acknowledgement.
5. Provide documentation to People Operations if the absence reaches the policy threshold and documentation is permitted.
6. Update the form or manager when the expected return changes.

The examples and explanatory wording in this reporting a sick absence section clarify how the stated rule operates; they do not increase a cap, shorten a deadline, create a new payment, or remove an approval. Where the document contains a local-law footnote or a site-specific entry, that exception should be considered together with the general rule rather than read in isolation.

For reporting a sick absence, the policy separates the underlying entitlement or standard from the procedure used to administer it. Employees should first identify the rule that applies, then follow the stated request, approval, record, or escalation path. A similar word or number in another BluePeak document may describe a different program and should not be substituted for this section.

4. Applying for Parental Leave

This section describes the required administrative path for applying for parental leave. A request is evaluated under the stated eligibility, notice, documentation, and approval rules; submitting information does not by itself change a limit or create approval.

Form: Form HR-103 Parental Leave Application
Form URL: <https://forms.bluepeak.example/hr-103>
Approver: People Operations
Expected turnaround: 10 business days

1. Confirm the six-month continuous-service eligibility requirement.

2. Open Form HR-103 Parental Leave Application at the listed form URL.
3. Enter the expected birth or placement information and the proposed leave dates.
4. Submit the request at least 30 calendar days before the expected start date where foreseeable.
5. Describe any requested intermittent blocks or phased return in the form.
6. Monitor the People Operations response and provide only the additional information requested.

Employees should provide accurate information for applying for parental leave, review the status shown in the designated system, and raise a discrepancy when the system record does not match the written policy. The responsible team should investigate the difference using the effective date, version, and document identifier shown on the first page.

Managers and process owners should apply the applying for parental leave language consistently and preserve the record that supports the decision. Communications should identify the relevant document and section so that the employee can distinguish the written policy from an informal explanation, a draft, or a rule that applies only at another site.

5. Submitting a Travel Request

This section describes the required administrative path for submitting a travel request. A request is evaluated under the stated eligibility, notice, documentation, and approval rules; submitting information does not by itself change a limit or create approval.

Form: Form FIN-201 Travel Pre-Approval
Form URL: <https://forms.bluepeak.example/fin-201>
Approver: manager, plus department head above $2,500
Expected turnaround: 5 business days

1. Determine whether the trip is overnight or estimated above $500 and therefore requires pre-approval.
2. Open Form FIN-201 Travel Pre-Approval at the listed form URL.
3. Enter the business purpose, itinerary, and estimated travel costs.
4. Submit the form to the manager through the approval workflow.
5. Allow the workflow to add department head approval when the estimate is above $2,500.
6. Book travel only after the required approval is recorded.

This submitting a travel request provision is intended to be understandable without relying on a verbal shortcut. When a question involves more than one policy topic, the answer should cite each applicable section and explain how the provisions work together instead of selecting a rule merely because its wording appears to be the closest match.

The examples and explanatory wording in this submitting a travel request section clarify how the stated rule operates; they do not increase a cap, shorten a deadline, create a new payment, or remove an approval. Where the document contains a local-law footnote or a site-specific entry, that exception should be considered together with the general rule rather than read in isolation.

6. Submitting an Expense Report

This section describes the required administrative path for submitting an expense report. A request is evaluated under the stated eligibility, notice, documentation, and approval rules; submitting information does not by itself change a limit or create approval.

Form: Form FIN-202 Expense Report
Form URL: <https://forms.bluepeak.example/fin-202>
Approver: manager
Expected turnaround: 5 business days

1. Gather the business-purpose information and every receipt required by the travel policy.
2. Open Form FIN-202 Expense Report at the listed form URL.
3. Enter each expense and identify the related trip.
4. Attach receipts for single expenses over $25 and for airport rideshare or taxi charges.
5. Submit the report within the applicable domestic or international deadline.
6. Monitor manager approval and the next payroll cycle for payment.

Administration of submitting an expense report should remain traceable from the employee question to the controlling policy text. The named owner may explain the provision and coordinate the relevant teams, but the explanation should preserve every stated threshold, eligibility condition, exception, and effective date contained in this document.

Employees should provide accurate information for submitting an expense report, review the status shown in the designated system, and raise a discrepancy when the system record does not match the written policy. The responsible team should investigate the difference using the effective date, version, and document identifier shown on the first page.

7. Requesting a Change to Your Work Arrangement

This section describes the required administrative path for requesting a change to your work arrangement. A request is evaluated under the stated eligibility, notice, documentation, and approval rules; submitting information does not by itself change a limit or create approval.

Form: Form HR-104 Work Arrangement Change
Form URL: <https://forms.bluepeak.example/hr-104>
Approver: manager, plus VP for Remote-First
Expected turnaround: 15 business days

1. Identify the current and requested arrangement: Onsite, Hybrid, or Remote-First.
2. Open Form HR-104 Work Arrangement Change at the listed form URL.
3. Enter the proposed start date and provide 30 days of notice.
4. Explain how the role will meet onsite and core-hours expectations.
5. Submit the form to the manager and allow VP routing when Remote-First is requested.
6. Continue the current arrangement until the change is approved.

For requesting a change to your work arrangement, the policy separates the underlying entitlement or standard from the procedure used to administer it. Employees should first identify the rule that applies, then follow the stated request, approval, record, or escalation path. A similar word or number in another BluePeak document may describe a different program and should not be substituted for this section.

This requesting a change to your work arrangement provision is intended to be understandable without relying on a verbal shortcut. When a question involves more than one policy topic, the answer should cite each applicable section and explain how the provisions work together instead of selecting a rule merely because its wording appears to be the closest match.

8. Requesting Learning and Development Funding

This section describes the required administrative path for requesting learning and development funding. A request is evaluated under the stated eligibility, notice, documentation, and approval rules; submitting information does not by itself change a limit or create approval.

Form: Form LND-301 Development Funding Request
Form URL: <https://forms.bluepeak.example/lnd-301>
Approver: manager, plus department head above $1,000
Expected turnaround: 10 business days

1. Confirm the six-month continuous-service eligibility requirement.
2. Open Form LND-301 Development Funding Request at the listed form URL.
3. Identify whether the request is tuition, certification, conference, books, or other covered learning material.
4. Enter the cost and supporting program information requested by the form.
5. Submit the request to the manager and allow department head routing when the amount is above $1,000.
6. Review the service-commitment and passing-grade requirements before accepting reimbursement.

Managers and process owners should apply the requesting learning and development funding language consistently and preserve the record that supports the decision. Communications should identify the relevant document and section so that the employee can distinguish the written policy from an informal explanation, a draft, or a rule that applies only at another site.

Administration of requesting learning and development funding should remain traceable from the employee question to the controlling policy text. The named owner may explain the provision and coordinate the relevant teams, but the explanation should preserve every stated threshold, eligibility condition, exception, and effective date contained in this document.

9. Updating Personal and Banking Details

This section sets out the BluePeak rule for updating personal and banking details. It should be applied with the document metadata, the related sections in this policy, and any stated cross-reference so that a number or phrase is not taken out of context.

Form: Form HR-105 Personal Details Update
Form URL: <https://forms.bluepeak.example/hr-105>
Approver: People Operations
Expected turnaround: 3 business days

1. Open Form HR-105 Personal Details Update at the listed form URL.
2. Select the personal or banking information that needs to be updated.
3. Enter the new information exactly as requested by the secure form.
4. Review the entry for accuracy before submission.
5. Submit the form to People Operations.
6. Check the form status and raise a discrepancy if the approved change is not reflected.

The examples and explanatory wording in this updating personal and banking details section clarify how the stated rule operates; they do not increase a cap, shorten a deadline, create a new payment, or remove an approval. Where the document contains a local-law footnote or a site-specific entry, that exception should be considered together with the general rule rather than read in isolation.

For updating personal and banking details, the policy separates the underlying entitlement or standard from the procedure used to administer it. Employees should first identify the rule that applies, then follow the stated request, approval, record, or escalation path. A similar word or number in another BluePeak document may describe a different program and should not be substituted for this section.

10. Escalating an Unresolved Request

This section describes the required administrative path for escalating an unresolved request. A request is evaluated under the stated eligibility, notice, documentation, and approval rules; submitting information does not by itself change a limit or create approval.

An unresolved request may be escalated to people-ops@bluepeak.example. The target first response is five business days. The escalation should identify the original form or request so People Operations can trace the existing record.

Employees should provide accurate information for escalating an unresolved request, review the status shown in the designated system, and raise a discrepancy when the system record does not match the written policy. The responsible team should investigate the difference using the effective date, version, and document identifier shown on the first page.
