Quick Reference

Topic	Standard
U.S. workweek	Monday 12:00 a.m. through Sunday 11:59 p.m. local time.
General core hours	10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. local time.
Austin site hours	9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. local time for designated Austin teams and site operations.
Meal period	30-minute unpaid, duty-free meal period when a U.S. non-exempt employee works more than 5 hours, unless a different law applies.
Time record	Non-exempt employees record all time worked each day, including remote, travel, after-hours, and message response time.
Absence notice	Notify the manager before the scheduled start when reasonably possible and record the correct leave type.
Job abandonment review	3 consecutive scheduled workdays without notice may trigger review after reasonable contact attempts.

Key rule: BluePeak pays for all time worked. Unauthorized work must still be recorded; failure to obtain approval may be addressed separately, but a manager may never direct an employee to work off the clock or alter accurate time.

1. Scope and Responsibilities

This policy applies to all employees for schedule and attendance expectations. Detailed timekeeping and overtime rules primarily apply to U.S. non-exempt employees; local working-time and recordkeeping requirements apply elsewhere.

Employees are responsible for punctuality, notice, accurate records, and timely corrections. Managers are responsible for realistic schedules, coverage, prompt review, equal treatment, and consultation with People Operations before treating a potentially protected absence as misconduct. Payroll is responsible for system controls and pay corrections.

2. Workweek, Workday, and Schedules

The U.S. payroll workweek begins Monday at 12:00 a.m. and ends Sunday at 11:59 p.m. The workday is the 24-hour period beginning at midnight unless Payroll assigns a documented alternative for a continuous operation.

Departments establish schedules based on customer coverage, collaboration, support, production, and site needs. Employees must know their regular start, end, meal, on-call, and onsite expectations. A flexible schedule changes timing, not total work or availability obligations.

2.1 Core Collaboration Hours

The general core-hours window is 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. local time. Designated Austin teams and Austin site operations use 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. local time. Employees should be reachable and available for required collaboration during the applicable window, excluding approved leave and meal periods.

A team may establish broader coverage hours with appropriate notice. Core hours do not mean every meeting should be scheduled across the full window; teams should consider time zones and focused work.

3. Non-Exempt Timekeeping

Non-exempt employees record:

- 1 actual start and stop times;
- 1 unpaid meal periods;
- 1 all work before or after the scheduled shift;
- 1 required training and meetings;
- 1 business travel time that is compensable;
- 1 on-call response time and authorized standby codes;
- 1 paid leave and unpaid time; and
- 1 corrections or comments required by Payroll.

Time must be entered daily and certified by the employee no later than 10:00 a.m. local time on the first business day after the workweek. Managers approve by 3:00 p.m. local time that day. Earlier cutoffs may apply before a holiday or payroll close.

3.1 Prohibited Practices

Employees and managers must not:

- 1 work or permit work off the clock;
- 1 record scheduled time instead of actual time;
- 1 ask another person to clock in or approve a record;
- 1 move hours between days or weeks to avoid overtime;
- 1 omit short periods spent responding to messages or completing tasks;
- 1 automatically deduct a meal period that was worked; or
- 1 change a record without an audit trail and employee notice.

4. Meal and Rest Periods

BluePeak's U.S. standard provides a 30-minute unpaid meal period when a non-exempt employee works more than 5 hours. The employee must be relieved of duties. If the meal is interrupted by work, the employee records the time as worked and tells the manager.

Paid rest periods are provided based on the employee's work location and schedule. Rest periods may not normally be combined, used to arrive late or leave early, or treated as unpaid. Lactation breaks and accommodations are administered separately and may require additional time.

5. Overtime, Extra Hours, and Schedule Changes

Non-exempt employees obtain advance approval before working beyond the schedule, overtime, weekends, holidays, or outside regular hours. All actual work must be recorded even when not approved. Overtime is calculated under the Overtime & Compensation Policy and applicable law.

Managers should provide reasonable notice of permanent schedule changes. A short-notice change may be necessary for an incident or customer emergency, but scheduling must not be used in a discriminatory or retaliatory manner. Employees may request a schedule accommodation through People Operations.

6. Attendance and Punctuality

Employees are expected to be ready to work at the scheduled start and to remain engaged through the scheduled end, excluding breaks and approved flexibility. Attendance includes required onsite days, customer meetings, on-call duties, and mandatory training.

An occasional delay caused by an emergency, transit disruption, caregiving event, or other unavoidable circumstance should be communicated promptly. Repeated or avoidable lateness may be addressed through coaching when it is not protected or accommodated.

7. Absence Notice and Call-In

Notify the manager before the scheduled start when reasonably possible. Use the department's designated call-in method and provide:

- 1 that you will be absent or late;
- 1 the estimated duration or next update time;
- 1 urgent coverage or handoff information; and
- 1 the applicable leave category if known.

Do not post medical details in a public channel. If the employee cannot provide notice, another person may do so. A manager who receives information suggesting a medical, family, disability, safety, military, or other protected reason must contact People Operations.

8. No-Call/No-Show and Job Abandonment

A no-call/no-show is a missed scheduled work period without required notice and without a known reason that prevented notice. People Operations reviews the circumstances before corrective action.

Three consecutive scheduled workdays without notice may be treated as job abandonment only after reasonable attempts to contact the employee through available work and personal channels, review of known leave or emergency information, and People Operations approval. A safety check or emergency contact may be appropriate when circumstances suggest risk.

9. Hybrid and Remote Attendance

Remote presence is measured by work performed, availability, meetings, customer coverage, and deliverables, not continuous camera use or online-status color. Employees must accurately record time and must not create the appearance of work by leaving a device active.

Hybrid employees follow approved onsite days. An occasional change may be approved by the manager; repeated changes require a work-arrangement review. Remote work does not replace Sick Leave when the employee cannot work safely and productively.

10. Weather, Transit, and Site Closures

BluePeak may close a site, delay opening, or direct remote work because of severe weather, building conditions, public emergency, or transportation disruption. The notice identifies pay and timekeeping treatment. Employees should not travel when doing so would be unsafe.

When a site remains open but an individual cannot travel safely, the employee should discuss remote work, PTO, unpaid time, or another available option. Local law may provide additional protection.

11. Time Record Corrections

Employees should submit a correction as soon as an error is discovered. The correction must identify the date, correct time or code, and reason. Managers review for accuracy, not budget preference. Payroll maintains the audit trail.

A pay-impacting error reported before the payroll cutoff will be corrected in the current cycle when practical. A material underpayment discovered after payroll is handled under the expedited correction process in the Payroll Schedule & Direct Deposit Policy.

12. Attendance Review and Corrective Action

Attendance concerns are evaluated based on reliability, frequency, notice, operational impact, policy compliance, prior coaching, and protected circumstances. Approved leave, disability-related absence, accommodation, workers' compensation, military leave, or another legally protected absence is not counted as misconduct.

Managers must not use a mechanical points system unless People Operations has approved it for the department and verified location-specific compliance. Coaching should identify the observed conduct, expected standard, available support, and consequences of continued issues.

13. Manager Checklist

Before addressing an attendance issue, a manager should confirm:

- 1 the employee knew the schedule and notice method;
- 2 time records are accurate;
- 3 the manager applied the same standard consistently;

- 4 the absence is not approved or potentially protected;
- 5 an accommodation or schedule discussion is not pending;
- 6 workload or scheduling practices did not contribute; and
- 7 People Operations reviewed any formal action.

14. Frequently Asked Questions

14.1 How long is lunch?

The U.S. company standard is a 30-minute unpaid, duty-free meal period when a non-exempt employee works more than 5 hours, unless a different location rule applies.

14.2 Do I record five minutes spent answering a message after work?

Yes. Record all time worked. Repeated after-hours work should also be discussed with the manager.

14.3 Can I skip lunch and leave early?

Not routinely. Meal requirements and coverage must be followed. Ask the manager before changing the schedule.

14.4 Does a green Teams status prove attendance?

No. Attendance is based on actual work, required availability, meetings, and accurate records.

14.5 Can my manager edit my timesheet?

A manager may correct an error with an audit trail and notice, but may not remove accurate time or alter a record to reduce pay.

90. Administration, Exceptions, and Questions

BluePeak administers attendance and timekeeping consistently with the employee's work location, employment classification, written employment terms, and applicable law. A statutory or contractual entitlement that is more generous than this document will apply to the extent required. A manager may not waive a legal requirement, create a new benefit, or promise an exception without written approval from the document owner.

Employees should raise questions before relying on an informal interpretation. Contact people@bluepeaktech.com or payroll@bluepeaktech.com through Outlook or the People Help channel in Microsoft Teams. Payroll, Legal, Information Security, or a site leader will be consulted when the question involves tax, wage-and-hour, privacy, immigration, safety, or local-law considerations.

Approved exceptions must identify the employee, the policy provision, the business reason, the approving authority, the start and end date, and any conditions. Exceptions are stored with the employee or transaction record and do not establish a precedent for other employees.
