Quick Answers

Question	Current rule
Who receives overtime?	Employees classified as non-exempt receive overtime required by applicable law.
What is BluePeak's U.S. workweek?	Monday 12:00 a.m. through Sunday 11:59 p.m. in the employee's assigned payroll time zone.
What is the standard U.S. overtime rate?	1.5 times the regular rate for hours worked over 40 in a workweek, unless a more protective rule applies.
Is there a weekend or company-holiday premium?	Preauthorized non-exempt work on Saturday, Sunday, or a designated company holiday is paid at 2.0 times base hourly rate. The highest applicable premium applies; premiums are not stacked.
Must unapproved overtime be recorded and paid?	Yes. Advance approval is required, but all hours worked must be reported and paid.
Does PTO count as hours worked for overtime?	Generally no. PTO, sick leave, holidays, and other paid leave are not hours worked unless local law requires otherwise.
Can managers promise raises or bonuses?	No. Compensation changes require the documented approval process.

No off-the-clock work: Reading or sending work messages, finishing a task after clock-out, completing required training, or performing any other work must be recorded. A budget or approval issue is handled separately from payment.

1. Purpose and Scope

This policy explains BluePeak's compensation classifications, wage-and-hour rules, overtime and company premiums, compensable travel and on-call time, salary administration, and approval controls. It applies to employees in the United States. Dublin employees follow Irish working-time, overtime, and contractual rules, with this document serving as company guidance only where compatible.

Sales commissions, the annual performance bonus, equity awards, severance, and benefit plans are governed by their own written terms. When those terms conflict with a mandatory wage law, the law controls.

2. Employment and Pay Classifications

2.1 Exempt and Non-Exempt

People Operations and Legal determine whether a role is exempt or non-exempt based on actual duties, pay basis, work location, and applicable law. Title, seniority, professional credentials, or a preference for salary does not determine status.

- 1 Non-exempt employees must record all compensable time and receive minimum wage, overtime, and other premiums required by law.
- 1 Exempt employees are generally paid a predetermined salary for the workweek and are not eligible for overtime, except when a written program or local law expressly provides it.

An employee or manager who believes duties have materially changed should request a classification review from people@bluepeaktech.com before changing timekeeping practices.

2.2 Hourly, Salaried, and Variable Compensation

Non-exempt employees may be hourly or salaried. A non-exempt salary does not remove the duty to record hours or the right to overtime. Exempt employees are generally salaried. Incentive or commission payments may affect the regular rate used for overtime and must be reported to Payroll.

2.3 Workweek and Workday

For U.S. payroll, the workweek begins Monday at 12:00 a.m. and ends Sunday at 11:59 p.m. in the employee's assigned payroll time zone. Managers may not move hours between weeks or substitute time off in a later week to avoid overtime. A legally approved alternative workweek is documented separately.

3. Recording Compensable Time

Non-exempt employees must record the actual start and end of work, meal periods, required training, approved travel time, call-back work, and other compensable activity. Time should be recorded to the minute or through the platform's lawful rounding configuration; employees may not routinely round their own time.

Compensable work includes work that BluePeak knows or has reason to know is being performed, even when it was not requested. Examples include responding to customer messages after hours, preparing a presentation before clock-in, troubleshooting during lunch, or logging in during a leave day.

Managers must actively prevent recurring unapproved work rather than deleting it from a record. Employees may be coached for failing to follow scheduling rules, but pay will not be withheld.

4. Overtime

4.1 Statutory Overtime

Unless a more protective local rule applies, a U.S. non-exempt employee receives 1.5 times the regular rate of pay for hours worked over 40 in a workweek. The regular rate may include nondiscretionary bonuses, shift differentials, commissions, and other remuneration required by law; it may differ from base hourly rate.

Paid leave, holidays not worked, expense reimbursements, discretionary gifts, and qualifying benefit contributions are generally excluded from hours worked or the regular rate, subject to law.

4.2 State and Local Rules

Employees in jurisdictions with daily overtime, double-time, spread-of-hours, reporting-pay, meal-premium, or seventh-day rules receive the more protective entitlement. Payroll configures these rules based on approved work location. Employees must not work from a different jurisdiction without approval.

4.3 Advance Approval

Overtime should be approved in writing by the manager before it is worked. Approval should identify the reason, expected hours, and period. In an emergency, the employee should notify the manager as soon as practical. A lack of approval is never a reason to omit hours.

5. Company Weekend and Holiday Premium

BluePeak pays a company premium of 2.0 times base hourly rate for preauthorized hours actually worked by a non-exempt employee on:

- ¹ Saturday or Sunday outside the employee's regular published schedule; or
- ¹ a BluePeak-designated company holiday.

A recurring weekend schedule does not automatically earn the company premium unless the compensation record expressly provides it. A shift that crosses midnight is allocated by actual time worked on each calendar day.

5.1 No Pyramiding

The employee receives the highest applicable premium for the same hour; overtime, weekend, holiday, call-back, and shift premiums are not multiplied or added to produce duplicate premium pay unless law requires it. For example, an hour that qualifies for both statutory overtime at 1.5 times the regular rate and the company holiday premium at 2.0 times base rate is paid using the greater lawful amount, not 3.5 times pay.

6. Special Time Rules

6.1 On-Call and Call-Back

A non-exempt employee who is free to use on-call time for personal purposes is generally paid only for actual response work. Restrictions that materially limit personal use may make the full period compensable. Scheduled on-call rotations and stipends require People Operations and Payroll approval.

Call-back work is recorded from the start of the required response through completion, including remote troubleshooting. BluePeak provides a minimum of two hours of pay for an unscheduled onsite call-back when local law or the approved program does not provide more.

6.2 Training and Meetings

Required training, mandatory meetings, security exercises, and job-related events are compensable for non-exempt employees. Optional learning outside normal hours is non-compensable only when it is genuinely voluntary, not directly related to current duties, and no productive work is performed.

6.3 Travel Time

Ordinary home-to-work commuting is not compensable. Travel between work locations during the day is compensable. Same-day travel to another city is compensable after subtracting the employee's normal commute, subject to law. Overnight travel that occurs during normal working hours, including corresponding hours on non-workdays, is generally compensable; driving required by BluePeak is compensable.

Employees must record travel accurately and should consult Payroll before a complex international itinerary or multi-time-zone trip.

6.4 Meal Periods

An unpaid meal period must be duty-free. A non-exempt employee who answers messages, monitors systems, remains responsible for a queue, or is interrupted for work must record the time. Managers should provide a complete replacement meal period where required.

7. Exempt Salary Administration

Exempt employees receive the full salary for any week in which they perform work, subject to lawful deductions. Permissible deductions may include full-day personal absences, full-day sickness under a bona fide leave plan, certain disciplinary suspensions, the first or last week of employment, unpaid protected leave, or offsets for jury or military pay, as allowed by law.

Improper-deduction concerns should be reported to Payroll. BluePeak will investigate, reimburse improper deductions, and take steps to prevent recurrence. Good-faith reports are protected from retaliation.

8. Compensation Decisions and Approvals

Base pay, ranges, promotions, market adjustments, geographic differentials, temporary premiums, stipends, bonuses, commissions, and equity must follow the approved compensation process. A verbal statement, budget placeholder, interview discussion, or manager email does not create an entitlement unless the authorized written record confirms it.

Typical approval authority is:

Action	Required approvals
New-hire pay within approved range	Hiring manager, People Partner, Talent Acquisition, and Finance budget owner
Promotion or base-pay adjustment	Department vice president, People Operations, Compensation, and Finance
Pay above range or off-cycle exception	Chief People Officer and Chief Financial Officer
Executive compensation	Chief Executive Officer and Board or Compensation Committee, as applicable
Temporary premium or stipend	People Operations, Payroll, and Finance with a defined end date

BluePeak reviews compensation for internal equity, market alignment, performance, skills, scope, location, and legal compliance. Employees may discuss their own wages and working conditions as protected by law.

9. Pay Equity and Non-Retaliation

Compensation decisions may not be based on race, color, religion, sex, pregnancy, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, age, disability, genetic information, protected veteran status, or another protected characteristic. BluePeak prohibits retaliation for raising a pay concern, requesting classification review, discussing compensation, reporting time, or participating in an investigation.

10. Corrections and Questions

Employees should report missing hours, an incorrect rate, an unpaid premium, or a suspected classification issue promptly to payroll@bluepeaktech.com or employeerelations@bluepeaktech.com. BluePeak will preserve time records, conduct a good-faith review, and correct confirmed errors under the Payroll Schedule & Direct Deposit Policy.

90. Administration, Exceptions, and Questions

BluePeak administers overtime and compensation administration consistently with the employee's work location, employment classification, written employment terms, and applicable law. A statutory or contractual entitlement that is more generous than this document will apply to the extent required. A manager may not waive a legal requirement, create a new benefit, or promise an exception without written approval from the document owner.

Employees should raise questions before relying on an informal interpretation. Contact payroll@bluepeaktech.com through Outlook or the People Help channel in Microsoft Teams. Payroll, Legal, Information Security, or a site leader will be consulted when the question involves tax, wage-and-hour, privacy, immigration, safety, or local-law considerations.

Approved exceptions must identify the employee, the policy provision, the business reason, the approving authority, the start and end date, and any conditions. Exceptions are stored with the employee or transaction record and do not establish a precedent for other employees.
