Quick Answers

Question	Current rule
What is Remote-First?	A documented arrangement in which the employee's primary approved work location is away from a BluePeak office.
May I move to another U.S. state and keep working?	Only after written People, Payroll, Legal, and manager approval. A residential address change alone is not approval.
When does temporary domestic work-away require review?	Before working 30 or more cumulative calendar days in another state during a rolling 12 months, and earlier when local rules or role risk require.
May I work internationally while visiting?	Only with advance approval, normally for no more than 15 consecutive calendar days, and only where tax, immigration, security, customer, and data requirements permit.
How far ahead should I request international work-away?	At least 30 calendar days before the proposed start.
Is home internet reimbursed?	Eligible Remote-First and Hybrid employees receive a $50 monthly taxable allowance through payroll.
Does remote work replace dependent care or sick leave?	No. Employees must be able to perform work safely and reliably and should use applicable leave when they cannot.

Location is a compliance fact: BluePeak must know the physical state and country from which work is performed. VPN routing, a mailing address, or a manager's informal agreement does not change the actual work location.

1. Purpose and Scope

This policy governs Remote-First arrangements and temporary work from a location other than the employee's approved work location. It applies to employees; contractors follow their contract and may not assume employee remote-work privileges.

Remote work is subject to role requirements, customer contracts, payroll registration, tax, employment law, immigration, export controls, benefits, insurance, privacy, security, time-zone coverage, and business continuity. Approval for one employee or location does not create a precedent.

2. Remote-Work Categories

2.1 Remote-First

The employee's primary work location is a specific approved home address or approved coworking site. The arrangement is recorded in the HR system and compensation record. Remote-First employees may be required to attend office, customer, planning, or team events with reasonable notice.

2.2 Temporary Domestic Work-Away

The employee remains assigned to the approved location but asks to work temporarily from another U.S. state. Short, low-risk periods may be manager-approved when the state is already supported, but People Operations must review before the employee reaches 30 cumulative calendar days in another state during a rolling 12 months. BluePeak may require review from day one for a new state, regulated role, customer-restricted role, or non-exempt employee.

2.3 Temporary International Work-Away

The employee asks to perform work from another country while remaining employed by the home entity. Approval is exceptional, limited to 15 consecutive calendar days, and does not establish a right to work while traveling. International remote work can be denied because tourist entry does not authorize work, local tax or employment exposure is unacceptable, data access is restricted, insurance is unavailable, or the customer contract prohibits it.

2.4 Business Travel

Travel primarily directed by BluePeak for meetings, customers, conferences, or operations is governed by the Travel Policy. Performing ordinary duties around a business trip may still require work-location review for an extended stay.

3. Eligibility

A role may be Remote-First when duties can be delivered securely and effectively without routine onsite presence, customer and team coverage are sustainable, required systems are available, and BluePeak is able to employ and insure the employee in the proposed jurisdiction.

BluePeak considers role scope, performance, autonomy, collaboration, time-zone overlap, sensitive data, equipment, site dependency, customer terms, and cost. A remote designation may be unavailable for facilities, hardware, lab, regulated, leadership, or customer-facing duties that require physical presence.

Eligibility decisions must be consistent and non-discriminatory. A disability or other protected accommodation is evaluated through the accommodation process and may require a different analysis.

4. Request and Approval Process

4.1 New or Permanent Location

Submit a permanent-location request at least 45 calendar days before the proposed move. Do not sign a lease, sell a home, relocate equipment, or assume approval. The request includes address, state and country, effective date, time zone, expected duration, office travel expectations, role duties, customer access, and connectivity.

Approvals normally include the manager, department vice president, People Partner, Payroll/Tax, Legal, IT Security, and Finance. Compensation may be reviewed for geographic range, and benefit availability may change. Any adjustment is confirmed in writing before the move.

4.2 Temporary Domestic Work-Away

Submit at least 20 calendar days in advance when the request may reach 30 days, involves a new state, or changes time-zone coverage. Provide the exact physical location and dates. BluePeak tracks cumulative days; employees must update the request if plans change.

4.3 Temporary International Work-Away

Submit at least 30 calendar days in advance. The request requires destination, exact dates, citizenship and work-authorization facts requested by Legal, business duties, customer or data access, device plan, emergency contact, and proposed schedule. Sensitive identity documents must be uploaded only through the secure workflow.

Approval may include limitations on systems, data, customers, working hours, device use, or location. The maximum 15-day period may be shorter for a particular country. Consecutive requests may not be used to avoid the limit.

5. Approved Work Location and Changes

The employee must perform work from the approved physical location. A routine day at a nearby coworking facility or family home may be permitted if it is in the same approved jurisdiction and security can be maintained, but the employee must remain reachable and comply with any address-reporting requirement.

A residential move, extended travel, evacuation, or change in household should be reported before it changes work location or security. In an emergency displacement, contact the manager and People Operations as soon as safe; BluePeak will determine whether temporary work is possible or leave should be used.

6. Schedule and Availability

Remote employees follow the schedule, core collaboration hours, and coverage requirements assigned to their role. U.S. general collaboration hours are 10:00 a.m.-3:00 p.m. in the employee's approved local time unless a team schedule states otherwise. Austin-assigned hybrid employees remain subject to the Austin window even on remote days.

The employee must maintain calendar accuracy, respond through standard channels, attend required meetings, and communicate outages or schedule changes. Non-exempt employees record all time and may not work overtime or from an unapproved time zone merely to increase coverage.

Global teams should establish handoffs and rotate inconvenient meetings. An international work-away request will not be approved when the proposed time difference makes safe, lawful, and sustainable coverage unlikely.

7. Performance, Communication, and Team Inclusion

Remote employees are held to the same standards for results, quality, customer service, collaboration, responsiveness, learning, and conduct as employees at a site. Managers should establish written outcomes, communication norms, decision records, and regular one-to-ones.

Remote status should not unfairly limit access to information, development, recognition, or promotion. Employees remain responsible for participating in required onsite or synchronous work. A performance concern should be addressed directly; remote status is not a substitute explanation.

8. Workspace, Safety, and Dependent Care

The employee must maintain a workspace that is safe, reasonably ergonomic, adequately lit, and suitable for confidential work. Walkways, electrical connections, seating, screen position, and emergency access should be maintained. Report a work-related injury within 24 hours after obtaining urgent care.

Remote work is not a replacement for continuous childcare, eldercare, or other dependent care when those duties prevent reliable work. Normal brief interruptions are expected in home environments and can be managed with the supervisor. When an employee cannot work, the appropriate leave or schedule adjustment should be used.

9. Equipment and Technical Support

BluePeak provides approved equipment according to role, usually a managed laptop, charger, headset, and necessary security tools. Monitors, docks, keyboards, ergonomic equipment, or specialized devices require the standard request process. Equipment remains company property.

The employee must not permit household members to use company equipment, disable security controls, install unapproved software, or connect restricted devices. IT support may remotely diagnose, configure, or wipe BluePeak equipment under the Acceptable Use of Company Devices policy.

The employee is responsible for reliable broadband and a backup communication method. Eligible employees receive a $50 monthly taxable internet allowance. BluePeak does not pay household rent, utilities, renovations, or routine coworking membership unless a written arrangement states otherwise.

10. Information Security and Privacy

Remote employees must follow data classification, least privilege, MFA, approved VPN and network rules, clean-desk practices, secure storage, and incident reporting. Restricted discussions should occur in a private room or approved space. Printed restricted information should be avoided and must be securely destroyed.

Public Wi-Fi may be used only with approved protections and never for restricted work when privacy cannot be assured. Work from a sanctioned, high-risk, embargoed, or customer-prohibited location is not allowed. IT Security may restrict or disable access based on country, device, network, or threat conditions.

11. Travel to BluePeak Sites

A Hybrid employee's travel to the assigned office is ordinary commuting and is not reimbursable. For a Remote-First employee, required travel to a BluePeak site may be treated as business travel when the approved arrangement identifies the home location as the regular work location and the manager authorizes the trip.

The arrangement letter may specify an expected number of onsite visits and whether the department or employee bears the cost. A voluntary visit is not automatically reimbursable.

12. Tax, Immigration, Benefits, and Insurance

Working in another jurisdiction may create payroll withholding, employer registration, corporate tax, immigration, labor-law, benefit, workers' compensation, unemployment, export-control, and privacy obligations. BluePeak decides whether it can support the arrangement; an employee cannot waive these obligations or accept personal responsibility on the company's behalf.

The employee is responsible for personal tax advice and truthful travel or immigration information. BluePeak may provide role-related guidance but does not guarantee a personal tax outcome. A location change may affect compensation range, benefits, leave, holidays, and entity of employment.

13. Expenses

Remote employees follow the same purchasing and reimbursement controls as other employees. Ordinary home costs are personal except for the internet allowance, approved equipment, accommodation, or legally required reimbursement. Travel, coworking, mobile data, and supplies require advance approval where the relevant policy requires it.

14. Review, Suspension, and Withdrawal

Remote arrangements are reviewed at least annually and when role, manager, performance, location, customer assignment, law, security, or business need changes. BluePeak may suspend remote access immediately for a credible security, safety, legal, or customer risk.

A permanent arrangement is normally changed with at least 30 calendar days' notice where practical. A serious policy breach, falsified location, unauthorized international work, or inability to perform may justify faster withdrawal and corrective action. Employees may request reconsideration through the People Partner but should continue following the current direction during review.

90. Administration, Exceptions, and Questions

BluePeak administers remote work consistently with the employee's work location, employment classification, written employment terms, and applicable law. A statutory or contractual entitlement that is more generous than this document will apply to the extent required. A manager may not waive a legal requirement, create a new benefit, or promise an exception without written approval from the document owner.

Employees should raise questions before relying on an informal interpretation. Contact people@bluepeaktech.com through Outlook or the People Help channel in Microsoft Teams. Payroll, Legal, Information Security, or a site leader will be consulted when the question involves tax, wage-and-hour, privacy, immigration, safety, or local-law considerations.

Approved exceptions must identify the employee, the policy provision, the business reason, the approving authority, the start and end date, and any conditions. Exceptions are stored with the employee or transaction record and do not establish a precedent for other employees.
